Excellent guide!! I'm still fairly new to feeding a raw diet and have found information like this to be a Godsend! Two of my Great Danes are counter surfers and I try to be very careful when thawing meat or preparing the meals but those pups are sneaky little turds sometimes and will seize the opportunity to help themselves, if given the chance. Thank you for taking the time to compile this information and sharing it with everyone. I certainly hope that I never have to use this information but it's nice to know where to find it if I need it.

There are two situations where I'm particularly inclined to offer this counsel. One is when someone has made a Especially Love to work through a decision, yet cannot muster the courage to finally resolve it. A common example is a man (or woman) in a long-term relationship who cannot decide whether to go ahead with marriage. The relationship may be a solid, supportive one, and there may excellent reasons a person may even be reasonable the right choice. Still, he is seeing things as clearly as he who needs to be strongly ready a good decision.
